

SIGNAL DETECTION USING PROBABILISTIC TECHNIQUES

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A receiver uses probabilistic techniques to identify the value of a received signal based upon a space of potential signals that may be generated by the transmitter. The receiver uses one or more iterations in which received signal values
5 are compared with potential signal models to enable identification of the incoming signal.